Write a lively Article about your role model for a teenage magazine. This could be a celebrity of your choice, a family member or a friend. Give your opinions about them and explain why you admire them.

The Queen of Dots

Is someone walking on a red carpet with shiny dress would be your role model or is your creators, parents, has built up a superhero impression in your head as your role model? Personally, my role model is none of them but someone suddenly goes into my eyes. My life changed in a second.

I remembered that afternoon, lying on a cosy sofa enjoying scrumptious biscuit, watching a show. A woman's hair in a bright red walked on a stage started to talk about her life. Behind her was a lot of colourful dots even in her costume. By the time, she said, 'Although I got a lot of mental issues and physical affects, art is always my biggest therapy. Apart from my age of 94, I will still carry on my artist life till death.'

She is a legend of Japan, overseas even the world. She is my role model, Kusama. Precious, Privileged, persistent are the adjectives to describe her.

The Legend

Kusama is 96 years old now. However, her art potential and artworks are immeasurably more. She was born during world war 2 and survive in a primary class. Once, she was the Cinderella in her family. Stress in her family is like a tsunami on her. She was highly influenced. Family Fued, War, Illness were attacking the last defend in her heart.

Surrounded by this pathetic, hideous and deathful moment, gave her a long term affection. Soon, her soul has been buried. Wait! Is it the end of a legend? Fortunately, legend always has their fate to finish their mission.

She moved to New York and depart from the notorious place in her memory. Opportunities never stop for her. Moving on in her life, she started to stand out for women, world's unfair and lastly for herself.

Back to the day I met and knew her in the TV show. She is charming, thoughtful and marvellous. She is an inspirable image in my life. Although she was affected by physical aspects and suffering in depression, there is never a 'no' for her to refuse Art. Nowadays, she is still enthusiastic and running over every single exhibitions. Sweats and blood has brought up during her life. How can a woman in wrinkles and white hair still motivate by Art? In my opinion she has been a legend to find the definition of life. She has been a legend to criticize for justice. She has been a legend to impress and a role model for us to acknowledge.

Big dreams, Big dilemma

Red, yellow, blue are familiar to be seen in Kusama's work. In my sight, the circles, dots are jumping around the picture but also representing the dilemma's in our daily.

Have you ever got mess up in your life? Have you ever got stressed out by unrequited love? Although we cannot get rid of the crucial reality. Kusama mentioned, 'Art I got a lot of mental issues and physical affects, art always my biggest therapy.'
